IDEAL combine wins Platinum A' Design Award

DULUTH, GA - AGCO (NYSE: AGCO), a global leader in the design, manufacture and distribution of agricultural machinery and solutions, announces today that its most recently launched combine harvester, IDEAL, won the 2018-2019 Platinum A' Design Award for outstanding design. An international jury awarded AGCO's IDEAL Combine the highest honor in the Agriculture, Horticulture and Fisheries category.

"IDEAL represents the first clean-sheet combine design in 30 years. AGCO's global team designed, tested and produces a combine to meet our customers' needs and varied harvest conditions across the globe. The result is a pioneering combine that delivers innovation, quality, automation and higher returns for farmers" said Barry O'Shea, Vice President, Global Product Line Manager.

The A' Design Award is the largest international design competition featuring 98 design categories, including architecture, furniture, graphics and vehicle design. Its jury consists of internationally renowned journalists, designers, scholars and entrepreneurs who annually award prizes in platinum, gold, silver, bronze and iron across the categories.

"We believe that your intelligent and diligent contributions to arts, science, design and technology through creation of superior works, products, projects and services makes the world a better place," commented Makpal Bayetova, Participant Coordinator, A' Design Award & Competition.

The A' Design Award Ceremony will take place in Como, Italy, on June 28, 2019.
